MANY POUNDS OF GHOST.

Its Mind Was Eased by Getting Back Its Place, Still It Walks the Earth.

Believe in ghosts? Of course I do! And you can find them right in this city of New York if you will only look in the right place and at the right time. Why, you might as well say that there was no sea serpent as to try and make me believe that there are no ghosts!

We are just now awfully interested in the pianomaker's ghost.

Never heard of it? Dear me!

About two years ago a workman in one of the biggest and best known piano factories in this city was suddenly discharged after he had been working there for many years. He was a big fellow, weighing over 300 pounds, and naturally his grief was large and voluminous.

He went home, thought the matter over, put a bullet into his head and died. His heart was broken.

The boys turned out, of course, and gave him an elegant funeral, and many of them were so overcome with mourning that they did not get back to work for several days.

Then the fun began.

Every night at 8 o'clock the spirit of that compiler of melody came to the factory and hovered about his old bench. It wandered through the rooms, toyed with the parts of unfinished instruments and filled the air with sighs and moans and sounds of anguish. Surely, never did sadder ghost return to the scene of its earthly heritage.

At length it was discovered that this ghost would answer questions by the old fashioned telegraphy of raps, and its old time friends sought to alleviate its pangs and ascertain the reason of its unrest. All sorts of questions were asked

"Are you unhappy, dear Fritz?"

"Rat, tat, tat—yes."

"Are you sorry that you killed yourself?"

"Rat, tat, tat—yes."

There was a pathos in those doleful raps.

"Is there something that you want, Fritz, very badly?"

"Oh, yes," the answer came.

What could it be? The workmen put their heads together. At length one man of genius asked:

"Is it your old place you want back? Do you want to be reinstated, Fritz?

The reply was affirmative, followed by a whole shower of delighted raps—a tattoo of exultation.

The proprietor was summoned, and as it cost him nothing he said that Fritz might have his old place back, and in a few moments the spirit was heard at his seat pounding away with great animation. A great load had been removed from its nebulous mind.

Perhaps you think this is a fairy story. Nay, verily! I have it from the lips of Professor G. G. W. Van Horn, psycho-magnetist and test and developing medium, himself.—New York Herald.

Noble Indians in Canada.

At the stations along the Canadian Pacific railroad where the Indians gather at train time there is only one lot which can be called fairly good specimens of their race. That is a remnant of Sitting Bull's old band which lives at Moose Jaw. There are sixty of these Indians, and when Sitting Bull returned to the land of his fathers they declined to cross the border, and are settled down permanently in Canada. A few other Sioux are also found at Brandon. They are all engaged in the buffalo horn industry. One old fellow at Moose Jaw was a noble specimen. He had a head that would not have disgraced a philosopher or a general, and a mien that was eloquent in its stateliness and dignity, and yet this old fellow, who looked as though he was made to preserve the best traditions of his race, was having a quarrel with a tourist over a difference of a quarter of a dollar in the price of a pair of horns.—Boston Herald.

A Splendid Herd of Elk.

Reader, what would you have given to have seen, as I have, a band of 250 bull elk all collected together on a beautiful piece of green grassy turf at an elevation 9,000 feet? Here was a sight to make a man's nerves tingle. This was the largest band of bulls, by actual count, that I have ever seen, though my cousin and partner once saw, in the fall of the year, including bulls, cows, and calves, 1,500.

This was the memorable occasion when the only elk ever killed by any of my men gave up his life, and we have all concluded that this particular elk was frightened to death, for though three men shot at him and each was confident he hit him, they always asserted afterward that no bullet mark could be found on him.—Archibald Rogers in Scribner's.

Sailors Who Are Poor Swimmers.

"Very few sea captains are good swimmers," Captain Andrew G. Braes, of the steamship State of California, tells a New York reporter. "I'm a poor swimmer myself. I can float for hours, however, and that is the best safety accomplishment for a mariner. I can put my hands under my head in the water and float for an indefinite period without getting tired. In my long service I have twice been in peril of my life, and once escaped by keeping afloat."

Unwelcome.

Peddler—Beg pardon, ma'am, but I am agent for Dr. Feeder's Spice Root Bitters, and I'm sure if the members of your family would try them they would soon have the finest appetite——

A CLEVER JAILBREAKER.

A Hindoo Getaway Who Was Really Able and Could Give Most Men Points.

For some months Raojee Koli, a notorious robber, behaved well. His devoted wife then appeared and petitioned for some jewels, which she asserted were her own property. Anyhow, she loitered about, and it is said she had an interview with him. Whether she helped or not in what happened afterward is best known to those who must have assisted our native Jack Sheppard in his wonderful escape. It is asserted that at 5 p. m. he was locked up in one of the solitary cells, which had an iron barred door and walls sixteen feet high, with a batten and Mangalore tiled roof. The next morning Raojee was non est. His escape was no mystery when the mode was carefully examined.

He appears to have been provided with a light rope some twenty-two feet long, which is usually used for the weaving weft. To this was knotted a tape from his pyjama. At the end of the tape he is supposed to have tied his cap with a little mud in it, and had adroitly thrown it so as to pass between the beam of the roof and the tiles. By a little shaking the weighted cap brought down this end of the rope within reach. When all is quiet he appears, or is said to have swarmed up the rope and most professionally removed the heavy tiles, placing them carefully one on top of the other. When the hole was sufficient to admit his body he got through and drew the rope after him to assist in getting down from the roof.

When this feat was accomplished he had to circumvent the watchers and clear the inner and outer walls and pass the sentries. Nothing daunted, he appears to have made for the central tower by getting out of his own ward, wriggled into the hospital ward and made for the outer ward at the back of the hospital. Here he placed an iron pot against the wall, but found he was too short to reach the top with its aid, so went to the building and wrenched off one of the shutters of a window, thereby procuring nails, which he fixed in the wall to assist in getting on the top. This was easily accomplished. To descend on the other side was nothing for him, but the next question was a more serious one—that was, surmounting the outer wall, which varied from eighteen to twenty feet in height.

Even this had been thought of, as he walked half around the jail to the blacksmith's shop, situated between the outer and inner walls, where he forced open the chest, armed himself with an implement sufficient for his purpose, and next proceeded to the superintendent's office, which is next to the sepoys' guard room. The padlock offered little resistance. The contents of the prisoners' property box were soon ransacked. Appropriating forty rupees in cash and rigging himself out in the best suit of clothes of under trial prisoners, he proceeded to the outer wall, where he must have been some time listening to the footsteps of the sentinel, and at the same time working through the wall with his blacksmith's implement during the interval between the sentry's visits.

At last, when all but through, his keen hearing pointed to the time for the removal of the last impediment, and he was free, with forty rupees in his pocket and a good suit of clothes to his back.

Thus ended a well planned, skillful and daring escape, much to the chagrin of the jail authorities and the contingent guard, whose sentry shortly afterward stumbled over the debris accumulated on his footpath, which had not been there when he last passed that way.—Allahabad (India) Pioneer.

How to Shoot Kangaroo.

Shooting kangaroo with a rifle requires a large degree of skill. On the flat plains the animals "loom" in an extraordinary manner, and it is only after much practice that one unaccustomed to measuring distances over these unrelieved areas can get their range. Sighting, for instance, at 500 yards, the tyro will be likely to see his bullet kick the dust 200 yards short of the mark, and the kangaroo, alarmed at the whistle of the missile on the ricochet, making off at express train rate in the distance. The surest way to bag kangaroo at long range is to put your sights up for the greatest distance at which the rifle is gauged, and gradually lower it until the bullets take effect.

A kangaroo will stand a lot of firing at in this way, and although he will look up as each shot sings above him, seems to consider it some strange insect or other, and directly resumes feeding. The "ping" of a rifle bullet that comes over him without interruption is quite different to the noise made by a ball on the rebound, and while he will take alarm from the latter the former has little disquieting effect upon him.—Boston Journal.

A Two Headed Snake.

Jim Rice ran across a natural curiosity the other day on the Tanyard branch. It was a snake about eight inches in length, of the adder variety, with two distinct and perfect heads and four eyes. When interrupted its tongues would dart out simultaneously and its four eyes glitter. People are usually unwilling to believe such as this, but it is an established fact. Unfortunately the snake was killed. It should by all means have been taken alive.—Dahlonega (Ga.) Nugget.

When the first libraries were established in England books were so rare and valuable that they were usually attached to the shelves by iron chains to prevent their being stolen.

A Clockwork Lion.

Dr. Willis in his "Land of the Lion and the Sun," recounts one of his own experiences in Persia

In my first house in Shiraz, an old and handsome one, I was continually annoyed by a buzzing, as of the winding of clockwork. This, I was told, proceeded from the snakes, but I never saw one, though the buzzing was to be heard in all parts of the house

One morning I was attracted by an unusual twittering of birds, and on looking out saw some thirty sparrows on the top of a wall, all jumping about in an excited manner, screaming, chattering and opening their beaks as if enraged.

At first I was at a loss to understand the cause of such a commotion, but presently I saw a pale yellow snake advancing deliberately upon the birds from the wooden window frame, out of which he hung. They appeared to be all of them quite fascinated, and none of them attempted to fly away. The snake did not take the nearest, but deliberately chose one more to his liking and swallowed it.

Glad to be rid of my buzzing annoyances, I got my gun, and notwithstanding the entreaties of the servants, some of whom wept, assuring me that the reptile was inhabited by the late master of the house, I gave him a dose of duck shot.

He was a big snake about four feet long. I cut him open and extracted the sparrow. After some ten minutes' exposure to the sun the bird got up and in half an hour more flew away apparently unhurt.

Shortly afterward a servant of my landlord came and took away the snake's body, and all my own servants sulked and looked black for a week. When I spoke to my landlord, however, an educated man, he laughed and simply congratulated me, saying that the clockwinding snake had annoyed him for years. I never heard the noise again.

How News Is Sometimes Given.

The press makes many mistakes. The wonder is that in the rush of presenting an epitome of the world's daily doings at each breakfast table it does not make a thousand errors for one. It makes very few deliberately, and many of those statements concerning which loud mouthed and quibbling denials are often accepted are true in their essentials.

Three examples will serve to throw light on this branch of the subject. Said a man of national fame who had commanded one of the Union armies and had been the governor of his state and had served with distinction in congress, in furnishing some sensational but true statements for publication, "This is exact, but if you ever give me as an authority I will publicly deny your dispatch."

Said a former dean of the diplomatic corps in presenting a story of deep interest, "If you allow this to be traced to me I will promptly deny any connection with it over my official signature, and leave you in the lurch."

Said a senator of many years service both in and out of congress, after talking at length for publication: "Yes, write it up, and print it. But be careful. If I don't like it I will deny the whole of it."—General H. V. Boynton in Century.

A Bullet's Freak.

A curious shooting affair, which occurred in Medora, N. D., is thus described by a traveler:

I did not see the actual occurrence, but I saw both men immediately afterward, and I heard the shooting, which took place in a saloon on the bank, while I was swimming my horse across the river. I will not give the full names of the two contestants, as I am not certain what has become of them, though I was told that they had since been put in jail or hanged, I forget which.

One of them was a saloon keeper familiarly called Welshy. The other man, Hay, had been bickering with him for some time. One day Hay entered the saloon and the quarrel became at once violent. Welshy suddenly whipped out his revolver and blazed away at Hay.

Hay staggered slightly, shook himself, stretched out his hand and gave back to his would be slayer the ball saying, "Here, man, here the bullet!"

It had glanced along his breast bone, gone a roundabout course and come out at the point of the shoulder when, being spent, it dropped down the sleeve into his hand.

The Copts of Egypt.

There are between four and five hundred thousand copts in Egypt. They are the bookkeepers and scribes; they are also the jewelers and embroiderers. Their ancient tongue has fallen into disuse, and is practically a dead language. They now use Arabic, like all the rest of the nation; but the speech survives in their church service, a part of which is still given in the old tongue, though it is said that even the priests themselves do not always understand what they are saying, having merely learned the sentences by heart, so that they can repeat them as a matter of form. Copts have been converted to Protestantism during these later days by the American missionaries.—Constance F. Woolson in Harper's.

A Backhander.

Mrs. Younghusband—I suppose you wish I didn't look under the bed every night.

Younghusband—I don't care if only you'd look there once in awhile in the daytime when you're sweeping.—New York Epoch.

SONOMA, NOVEMBER 14, 1891.

As anticipated some months ago, a company has been formed in London, Eng., to distill in England pure grape brandy from grape juice concentrated in vacuo and imported from California under contract with the American Concentrated Must Company. The Company is to have a capital of 30,000 shares of £1 each, and will have its plant and machinery located at Chissold Park, London. The American Concentrated Company, says the Wine Trade Review, by the said contract, undertakes to supply the "must" upon definite terms to the mutual benefit of the contracting parties. The brandy already made from the "must" has proved to be of excellent quality and flavor. It is understood that next year the must company will move its plant to Littons in this county, and considerably enlarge its facilities for work.

THE will of General W. A. Johnson has just been admitted to probate at Sheffield, Ala. The estate foots up to within a few dollars of $1,000,000. General Johnson was with General Bedford Forest. In seeking some points of history, General Johnson was asked for some facts of his career. He said: "I went on a steamer as a deckswee p, and left the river as commodore of the fleet. I went into the army as a private and came out a Brigadier-General. When I got home, I had a wife, a pair of crutches and a baby. Now we have ten babies, and can give them $100,000 each." General Johnson left his entire estate to his wife, saying she did more to make him succeed than he did himself.

AN artesian well, nine inches in diameter, has been sunk to a depth of 2,040 feet at Galveston, Texas, and has yielded an interesting contribution to science. Below 1,500 feet from the surface wood was struck in the clay, with seeds resembling apple and hackberry seeds. The age of the wood is estimated at 200,000 years by scientists who have examined.

A TRAVELING dairy has been organized in New South Wales for the purpose of visiting different districts and giving instructions in all dairying operations. Each locality is required to furnish a suitable building, a supply of about fifty gallons of milk daily, and at least ten pupils for the full course of instruction. The dairy will be operated for ten days at each place where set up.

Supersensitiveness.

A person who has not done anything to distinguish himself is generally not allowed queer habits. Eccentricity is not for common people. But for Washington Allston, one of America's most noted painters, all things were right. His excessive sensitiveness was shown in many ways.

When India rubber overshoes began to be worn he was induced to purchase a pair for his health's sake, but he could never put them on or remove them except with a pair of tongs.

But that same delicate sensitiveness showed itself in another way. His scrupulous conscience was illustrated by an incident occurring in 1816, when he was in urgent need of money.

He had just found a purchaser for one of his pictures, but thinking the matter over alone in the evening he concluded that the subject of the painting was such that at some time it might have an immoral effect on some perverted imagination.

He immediately went to his patron's house, paid back the money, took the picture home and burned it.

This was sensitiveness worth having.—Youth's Companion.

The Western Settler's Chosen Specific.

With every advance of emigration into the far West, a new demand is created for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Newly peopled regions are frequently less salubrious than older settled localities, on account of the miasma which rises from recently cleared land, particularly along the banks of rivers that are subject to freshets. The agricultural or mining emigrant soon learns, when he does not already know, that the Bitters afford the only sure protection against malaria, and those disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, to which climatic changes, exposure, and unaccustomed or unhealthy water or diet subject him. Consequently he places an estimate upon this great household specific and preventive commensurate with its intrinstic merits, and is careful to keep on hand a restorative and promoter of health so implicitly to be relied upon in time of need.

MRS. GRAHAM'S

CUCUMBER and ELDER FLOWER CREAM,

Is not a cosmetic in the sense in which that term is popularly used, but permanently beautifies. It creates a soft, smooth, clear, velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind, and prevents sun burns and freckles, and blackheads will not come while you use it. It causes the face far better than soap and water, nourishes and builds up the skin tissues and thus prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the freshness, clearness and smoothness of the skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady, and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price $1.00, at all druggists and hair-dressers, or at Mrs. Gervaise Graham's establishment, 104 Post Street San Francisco, where she treates ladies for all Blemishes of the face and figure. Ladies at a distance treated by letter. Send stamp for her little book "How to be Beautiful."

SAMPLE BOTTLE mailed free to any lady on receipt of 10 cents in stamps to pay for postage and packing. Lady agents wanted.

Stolen and Recovered

On Thursday of last week a young fellow about nineteen years of age, apparently a hoodlum from San Francisco, hired a horse and go cart at the Union Stables in this place. He stated that he wanted the rig for a few hours as he was going a short distance into the country. About an hour after leaving town he turned up at Embarcadero and offered to sell the horse and cart to Chas Olm for $70. The suspicions of that gentleman were aroused and he was on the point of detaining the young fellow when he became alarmed and rode rapidly away. He subsequently turned up in Petaluma and the next day sold the outfit to "Big Mike" an employee of one of the livery stables in that city for $30. Granville Harris, the proprietor of the Union Stables, became convinced on Saturday morning that the horse and cart had been stolen and instituted a search for his property, with the above result. He recovered the rig without trouble, while the purchaser of the stolen property is out the $30. The thief made good his escape.

ALUM AND AMMONIA IN OUR BREAD.

Shall we Drive Slow Poison from our Breakfast Table.

A nuisance that troubled England fifty years ago is now rapidly spreading over this country, that is, putting Alum in the bread we eat. This question is causing a great deal of discussion at the present moment, and is being revealed that alum is being used as a substitute for cream of tartar in baking powders. A story is told that a very large percentage of baking powders sold on the market contain either alum or ammonia and many of them contain both of these pernicious drugs. Much timely alarm is felt at the wholesale use of alum in bread, biscuit and pastry. To young children, growing girls, persons of weakly frame, alum bread eating, morning, noon or evening is most harmful. It is the small quantities taken at every meal that do the mischief. Alum is cheap, costing but two or three cents a pound, while cream of tartar costs 30c, and the high price of cream of tartar has led cheap baking powder to be made of alum. If the reader wants to know something about the corrosive qualities of alum let him touch a piece to his tongue then reflect how it acts on the tender, delicate coats of the stomach.

The Scientific American publishes in a recent number a list of alum and ammonia baking powders, which is of great value at this time. Following is a condensed list compiled from official reports. Powders marked with a star seem to have a general sale, as they are mentioned in at least two or three official reports:

*ATLANTIC & PACIFIC.	*ROYAL
CROWN.	SILVER STAR
*DAVIS O. K.	*SNOWDRIFT
GEM.	STAR.
*KENTON.	STANDARD.

There are, in addition to the foregoing list from the Scientific American, a number of such powders sold in the western that were not found in the eastern stores.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

The Custom of Announcing.

Some New York women will not adopt the custom, now almost universal, of having guests announced. All first class caterers send out "callers" along with door openers and maids for the cloak rooms, but not all hostesses accept their services. "It's too much like Washington and official crushes," said one frequent entertainer the other day. "It's English, too, I know," she went on, "but I like to pay my guests the compliment of recalling them without having my memory stimulated by a servant."

"That's all very well," said her companion, also often a hostess, "but in my case, without their aid, I should pay many of my very good friends the poor compliment of inability to say their names at all. I really couldn't get through an 'at home' creditably if deprived of this assistance. I find great difficulty in making names fit faces, and in the constantly arriving throng I should get hopelessly confused if things were not all arranged for me."—Her Point of View in New York Times.

GLEN ELLEN.

Jottings from Our Regular Correspondent

Hon. A. P. Overton of Santa Rosa, a Trustee of the Home, accompanied by State Controller Colgan, was in town last Tuesday.

All the children from the Feeble Minded Home in Santa Clara county will be moved to the new Home near Glen Ellen before Thanksgiving.

The cold nights of late, with the aid of Jack Frost, has made red the tips of the noses of a number of our residents.

The Reid & Pless band of San Francisco entertain the many guests at the Mervyn Hotel every evening with excellent music.

The large plate windows in the Capital Saloon have been ornamented and painted in variegated colors. Jimmy has an eye to the beautiful.

The beaming countenance of Dr. Hunter has not been seen on our streets the past few days. He has been confined to his room with a slight illness.

The special tax election in the Enterprise School District last Friday, was again defeated by a decided majority. We presume Enterprise will have to do without a school.

Grape hauling and wine-making still continues in full blast. Kohler & Frohling and Chauvet are the principal manufacturers and will make respectfully 300,000 and 400,000 gallons.

The bolts and fistenings on the new iron bridge at this place are working loose, and the structure is somewhat shaky. It is the duty of the county to repair the same and it should not be delayed.

The church services held in the school house the past week have been largely attended. The services, conducted by Revs. Reid and Tobey, were instructive and much interest was manifested.

The population of Glen Ellen was increased last Wednesday by the arrival of a bouncing baby boy at the home of Mr and Mrs. Henry Heide. All are doing well, particularly the paternal part of the house.

Florence, the little daughter of Chas. Justi, ate heartily of grapes last Tuesday and in consequence was taken suddenly and alarmingly ill. The little one, we are glad to state has now entirely recovered.

The two-year-old child of Chas. Justi of Allindas Gardens, near Glen Ellen, was taken alarmingly ill with convulsions last Tuesday. Medical aid was called in and the child's life saved. The convulsions were caused by an accumulation of the skins and seeds of grapes in the child's stomach.

A desperate way of collecting money was resorted to by a laborer employed at the Home last Wednesday. The man stood up Contractor McCann and demanded his wages and to enforce his demand threatened to shoot him. Mr. McCann, not caring to take any chances, at once complied with the demand. Later on, however, he had the man arrested and he is now in custody charged with threats against life. His trial will take place in Santa Rosa to-day.

WIDE AWAKE.

Glen Ellen, Nov. 12, 1891.

Deafness can't be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A cream of tartar baking powder—Highest of all in leavening strength.—
Latest U. S. Gov't Food Report.

ABSOLUTELY PURE.

Established by Government Tests the Standard Baking Powder. The very Giant of leavening agents. Has a larger use than all other cream of tartar baking powders combined.

PROF. HAINES, of Rush Medical College, Consulting Chemist Chicago Board of Health: "I find the Royal Baking Powder superior to all the others in every respect."

DR. H. A. MOTT, U. S. Government Chemist: "The Royal is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder made."

PROF. PALMER, University of Illinois: "I find Royal Baking Powder invariably composed of wholesome ingredients, entirely free from adulteration or impurities of any kind."

SAN FRANCISCO BOARD OF HEALTH: "In our judgment it is impossible to make a purer or stronger baking powder than the Royal."

THE N. Y. STATE ANALYST: "The Royal Baking Powder is superior to any other powder which I have examined."

THE MINNESOTA STATE CHEMIST: "I consider the Royal one of the best baking powders made."

WISCONSIN FOOD COMMISSIONER: "Royal Baking Powder is of high and uniform strength and quality; its ingredients pure and wholesome."

INDIANA STATE CHEMIST: "Royal Baking Powder is perfectly free from any deleterious or injurious substance."

Avoid all baking powders that require larger cans than the Royal to hold an equal weight. This is sure evidence of their adulteration.

Be Somebody.

It does not matter how humble may be our situation in life we may glorify it. Although we are at the foot of the ladder we need not stay there. If we do each duty that comes in our way, the very best it can be done—if we try to learn something every day—if we seek the company of those only who are pure and good—we will find, almost before we are aware of it, that we are respected. It was not intended that we should simply eat, drink and live for a few years, and then die and be forgotten. If we have some object in life, if we try by kindness and a worthy example to benefit others, we will be remembered long after the grass has grown green over our last resting-place. While if we live only for ourselves and never try to make others happier, few will mourn when we are gone.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1891.

A Siberian Quarantine.

Nothing of interest happened to us until late in the evening, when, just as we were turning up from the river into a small peasant village, the name of which I have now forgotten, both we and our horses were startled by the sudden appearance of a wild looking man in a long, tattered sheepskin coat, who, from the shelter of a projecting cliff, sprang into the road ahead of us, shouting a hoarse but unintelligible warning, and brandishing in the air an armful of blazing birch bark and straw.

"What's the matter?" I said to our driver, as our horses recoiled in fright.

"It's the plague guard," he replied.

"He says we must be smoked."

The cattle plague was then prevailing extensively in the valley of the upper Yenisei, and it appeared that round this village the peasants had established a sanitary cordon with the hope of protecting their own live stock from contagion. They had heard of the virtues of fumigation, and were subjecting to that process every vehicle that crossed the village limits. The "plague guard" burned straw, birch bark and other inflammable and smoke producing substances around and under our pavoska until we were half strangled and our horses were frantic with fear, and then he told us gravely that we were "purified" and might proceed. —George Kennan in Century.

American Colleges.

For one who wishes to acquire knowledge beyond what the mere reading of books can give there are but two methods possible. To go to the teacher, or to have the teacher come to you. Both these methods cost money in land which embraces the width of a continent. This is the justification in the long run of that multiplication of colleges which is so often criticised. It needs only a glance at the map to see that we have not so many colleges to the square mile, after all, as England or Germany. It takes a Scotch lad but a few hours to go by rail to Oxford or Cambridge, while it takes a California boy almost a week to reach Yale or Harvard.

The element of distance and its equivalent expense render it necessary to plant institutions of learning all over the country instead of concentrating on a very few. At the west the beneficent custom of building up state universities for both sexes may in time make the problem of higher training as cheap as in Europe. Indeed, at some centers, like Ann Arbor, it may already have done this. But we must always remember that Europe had enormously the start of us in accumulated opportunities, and wherever these opportunities are opened freely and in the modern spirit they afford an advantage with which it is as yet hard to compete. —Harper's Bazar.

How People Hear Their Own Voices.

In his article on "Speech and Song," Sir Morell Mackenzie says people do not hear their own voices as other people hear them. Voices are conveyed to the auditory nerve, not only through the outside air, but more directly from the inside, through the Eustachian tube as well as through the muscles and bones of the mouth and head. The singer not only hears his own voice from a different quarter, as we may say, but he hears besides the contraction of his own muscles. The fact is well illustrated by the phonograph. A listener can recognize other people's voices, but if he speaks into the phonograph, and afterward reproduces his own voice, it does not sound at all like itself to him. A free pardon, after this explanation, may be more readily accorded to certain persons in every one's circle of acquaintances who insist upon obliging with a song. They know not how horrid it sounds. —London Tit-Bits.

People We Sometimes Meet.

Did you ever meet one of those ambitious, vain and energetic persons, who, possessed of a competence, is forever trying to get a trifle higher in the social scale, and who, as an accompaniment to that effort, is continually bewailing the failure to reach the exact level he has his eye upon? I know one of that kind, an awfully good fellow except for the weakness indicated, and I often speculate over the good he could do, the benefits he might bestow, if he would try to lift a lot of toiling, worthy and desirable people up to his own material condition, instead of trying all alone to climb higher. In fact, I've often wondered why he does not tackle me as an experiment. —Detroit Free Press.

No Forelegs and No Tail.

The oddest cat in Connecticut belongs to A. C. Wood, a barber in Hartford. It is a pretty little brown and white fellow, and very playful, although it has no forelegs and no tail. It was born without those things. Its mother is a bobtailed old pussy that still dwells in Northampton, Mass., and the woman who owns the old cat brought the freak to Hartford and gave it to the barber, whom she visited. The queer kitten gets over the ground by jumping like a kangaroo, and it travels rapidly. In the place where the forelegs ought to be are two tiny flappers, which it moves in jumping. Cor. New York Sun.

Not Beastly.

Englishman—Beastly weather, h'isn't h'it?

American—Humph! The only creature that would like this weather is a duck, and a duck isn't a beast. It's a fowl. This is foul weather. —New York Weekly.

"German Syrup"

A Cough and Croup Medicine.

For children a medicine should be absolutely reliable. A mother must be able to pin her faith to it as to her Bible. It must contain nothing violent, uncertain, or dangerous. It must be standard in material and manufacture. It must be plain and simple to administer; easy and pleasant to take. The child must like it. It must be prompt in action, giving immediate relief, as childrens' troubles come quick, grow fast, and end fatally or otherwise in a very short time. It must not only relieve quick but bring them around quick, as children chafe and fret and spoil their constitutions under long confinement. It must do its work in moderate doses. A large quantity of medicine in a child is not desirable. It must not interfere with the child's spirits, appetite or general health. These things suit old as well as young folks, and make Boschee's German Syrup the favorite family medicine.

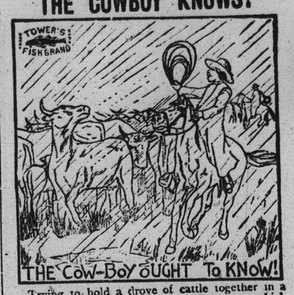
THE COWBOY KNOWS!



Trying to hold a drove of cattle together in a drenching rain means an amount of exposure which few can withstand without serious results. If sickness does not follow, it will be found that such hardship usually brings on rheumatism and similar complaints. At such times a "Fish Brand Slicker" is worth its weight in gold, and is invaluable to any one exposed to stormy weather. For all saddle uses, you want a Pommel Slicker, which keeps the entire saddle, pommel, and cantle dry, and completely envelopes the rider from head to foot. He can't get wet, whatever the weather. And, besides keeping him dry, it keeps him warm. Every range rider has one. Why shouldn't you? Beware of worthless imitations; every garment stamped with "Fish Brand" Trade Mark. Don't accept any inferior coat when you can have the "Fish Brand Slicker" delivered without extra cost. Particulars and illustrated catalogue free.

THE Bravest 500 OF '61,

A Wonderful Book made from the records of the War Department.

COMPILED BY BVT. BRIG.-GEN. T. F. Rodenbough.

Of the 2,778,304 men enlisted in the Union Army and Navy, 1861-5, a little less than 500 were especially recognized by the War Dept., as coming under the Act of Congress, July 12, 1862, for distinguished bravery, which gave them the United States Medal of Honor.

Many of the stories, told by the heroes themselves, of how they won the high distinction, are extremely interesting. That the records of these deeds are almost unknown to their countrymen, but lie buried in the pigeon holes of the War Dept., and in the recesses of their own breasts, seems astonishing.

This book must find a wide sale, for it is full of incidents that will interest every old soldier in the land, and our boys will glory in it. It is an 8vo volume of over 500 pages, with nearly 100 excellent illustrations, made specially for the work.

It rooks of its time and deserves a place in the library of all who would not altogether forget the glorious past.
